LOCAL

NATURAL

SUSTAINABLE

Due to systemic gender-based obstacles, female entrepreneurs, especially small local producers and rural women business owners, have lower incomes and profits than businesses led by men.

However, statistical data show that the economic and financial results of women-owned enterprises reach or even outweigh the results of male-owned enterprises if they operate on equal terms. The economic impact of the pandemic has also affected women to a greater extent, especially women entrepreneurs.

Nevertheless, women producers demonstrate the resilience and drive to reduce existing inequalities, contribute to economic growth and bring high added value to the national economy.

It is very important for us to support women producers in developing their businesses, which will ensure equal, sustainable growth not only in their respective sectors but also in the entire economy.

Her Excellency Katarina Fried
The Ambassador of Sweden in Chisinau

Regarding the Republic of Moldova's national efforts, progress in developing and promoting policies to economically empower local women producers, including those in rural areas, and facilitating the development of local affairs are noticeable.

Thanks to development assistance from Sweden, various economic development projects, including those dedicated to women entrepreneurs, are being supported.

We try to complement government efforts and, through this assistance, give women producers the possibility to access different funds and opportunities.
